

7to11@SLING – a new scholarly forum in lipidomics

7–11 AM and 7–11 PM are convenient times in Singapore for live online events with global attendance. The morning session offers ideal dial-in windows for Western (e.g. UTC–8) and far-Eastern (e.g. UTC+10) locations. Evening hours in Singapore on the other hand are convenient for most central times (e.g. UTC+1). Therefore, 7 to 11 either in the morning or the evening are opportune hours for connecting at the Singapore Lipidomics Incubator (SLING), hence 7to11@SLING.

The founding principles of 7to11@SLING are captured visually in its icon:

First, it is connecting. The timing of individual events will allow networks to grow far beyond their current centres and towards greater diversity of interested individuals worldwide.

Second, it is engaging. Collaboration and exchange of ideas and views among participants is sought rather than unidirectional streams of information. This central element is highlighted by the dashed lines, symbols for data exchange, and further enhanced in SLING colours.

Finally, it is forward. Challenges and opportunities are organized thematically into monthly sessions for potential future adoption by the community.
